DR. HEDGERS TO SPEAK ON APRIL 3

Woman's Club to Hear Talk on "Child Welfare in General"

URGE MEMBERS BE PRESENT

Dr. Caroline Hedgers of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund will deliver the address before the Woman's club, April 3rd, upon the subject "Child Welfare in General." She is said to be an exceptionally strong, convincing speaker, one who, like Mrs. Featherstone has a message to deliver—and knows how to do it.

In behalf of the program committee we urge all members of the club to be present and to give Dr. Hedgers the compliment of an unusually large attendance. The subject speaks for itself and should interest every woman.

From all reports this address will be one of the best in the year's program and no one should miss it.

An invitation is extended to the High School girls—one and all—to come and hear Dr. Hedgers and also to give her name as a Junior associate member of the Woman's club.

We are nearing the close of the club year. The time has come when it is necessary to nominate the officers who are to serve the club the coming year. To this end nominations are in order for the offices of President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, also a chairman of the social committee and for the membership committee.

The nominating committee of which Mrs. Della Mathews is chairman, urge all members to express in writing their choice of women eligible to fill these several offices and to do so as soon as convenient. All nominations must be made before April 15th.

According to the By-laws "No member shall be eligible for the presidency who has not served at least one year on the board of managers, no officer shall hold the same office for more than two consecutive years and no member of less than one year standing shall be eligible for office."

Please be guided by these restrictions in making a nomination. Send all nominations to Mrs. Della Mathews in order that the nominating committee may know the wishes of the club in regard to those who are to hold these important offices for the coming year.

In justice to these prospective officers every member of the club should express a choice to the committee. Any officer will work with better heart when assured that she is in office by the expressed will of the majority of the voters.

The officers of the club are its servants. Their duty is to carry out the expressed will of the organization they represent. Choose officers because of fitness for the position. Send the names of your choice to the nominating committee now—before you forget it.

The next meeting of the Woman's club will be held at 2:30 instead of 3:15.

On Saturday afternoon the Children's Lenten service at 4:30 and followed immediately by choir practice. In the evening there will be a meeting of the finance committee for the purpose of discussing several matters of importance.

Lake Region Is Proving Popular for Summer Homes

The beauty of the lakes surrounding Antioch, together with the excellent accommodations of that locality to the business people of Chicago and other nearby cities, is becoming more and more attractive and admired every day. As a result Antioch will have some new neighbors this summer.

Dr. John A. Ritze, prominent physician and surgeon of Chicago, Henry O. Bosse and William K. Lauth, of Maywood, Ill., have purchased lots on Eagle Point, on the northeast bank of Lake Marie in the J. P. Bowles' subdivision. This spot is regarded as one of the most beautiful and most desirable locations for summer homes in the northern Illinois lakes. There are numerous other prospective purchasers for their beautiful summer home sites who are negotiating for lots in this subdivision, among them one of the largest banks in Chicago, who contemplates building a summer home for the bank officers and employees. What makes this place doubly desirable is that the run can be made in two hours by auto over the splendid concrete roads, and in one and one-half hours by train. The early train arriving in Chicago at 8:25 in the morning, in time for people to get to their place of business.

It is rumored that the "Westlake Farm" adjoining the J. B. Bowles' property is being considered as a golf course. This would prove very attractive to the summer resorters of Chicago and other cities tributary to Antioch.

Babe Lost in Woods Is Rescued by Searching Party

The little four year old son of Ray Gates was lost in the big town hall woods on the Wilmet road last Wednesday night about dusk. He had followed some older children into the woods, and the absence of the little fellow on their return caused them to send out an alarm and about thirty of the friends and neighbors of the family organized themselves into a searching party, this was kept up until nearly midnight when evidently a shout from someone near the child awoke him and his cries were heard and quickly he was located. Then the little babe in the woods all mud and wet from exposure was soon made comfortable by his parents in his own little bed at home. Fortunately so far he has not suffered any ill effects from his little adventure which might have ended so seriously.

WATEROUS-FORD FIRE ENGINE IN DEMONSTRATION WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

Strong Wind and Leaky Hose Are Given as Reasons for Poor Demonstration

ANOTHER SHOWING ON FRIDAY

Before a gathering of some hundred or more spectators yesterday afternoon the Waterous Ford fire truck gave a demonstration on Main street by the members of the Antioch Volunteer fire department. Due to a strong east wind and poor hose, which leaked in numerous places, the engine was not able to throw a stream expected by the demonstrators. Another objection pointed out by many was the small rear tires, which were almost flat when firemen mounted the apparatus which was carrying over 1,000 feet of hose, besides a complete fire fighting outfit. After several hours of testing the engine and finding how fast the machine would travel taxed to capacity the matter was left to further decision.

An adjourned meeting of the Antioch Volunteer Fire department last night considerable discussion was heard on the demonstration given by the fire truck contracted for by the fire department, Feb. 14th.

There seemed to be a strong sentiment for a heavier truck due to the fact that the claim is made that the truck contracted for did not live up to specification.

Mr. Burns, in combating the argument against the showing made by the machine, pointed out the fact that the wind and condition of the hose was unfavorable to a fair test.

Action was finally taken to let the Waterous Company give another demonstration Friday afternoon, along with any other machine which may wish to compete.

The citizens must not lose sight of the fact that this machine was duly contracted for under the sanction of a regular meeting of the Fire department Feb. 14th, at which there was an attendance of more than double a quorum and after listening to propositions put forth by Mr. Burns, a representative of the Waterous Fire Truck Co., in which he gave the department specifications of the least expensive truck at very liberal terms, a motion was made by "Wallis". Chinn and seconded by Sam Tarbell that the fire department purchase the truck.

This motion was passed unanimously and at the request of the representative of the Waterous Company the signatures of the fire chief and the secretary were requested before they would undertake the construction of the truck contemplated.

There is no getting away from the fact that the citizens of the town and nearby sections should have something to say in regard to the truck inasmuch as the will be asked to donate toward the purchasing of it, but at the same time the men who are volunteering their time and risking possible injury for the combating of fires should be given some consideration and at least be given the opportunity of choosing their own "weapons."

Let us wait until the demonstration Friday before passing further criticism. If the truck does not live up to specification let the fire department reject it. If it lives up to specification let us acknowledge the contract entered into, knowing that the group of men comprising our fire department have acted in good faith. If they are not capable of selecting an appropriate machine under the circumstances surrounding them, who is?

Court Sanctions Assessment for Improved Road

Notice was received Monday by the village attorney, Eugene M. Runyard, that Antioch Special Assessment Docket Number Seven for the paving of Main street was confirmed.

The final plans and specifications will be put in form and submitted to the state and then the village will be ready to advertise for bids and let the contract when the state has accepted a bid for their share of the improvement.

WOULDN'T NEED A BOAT

House Had One Advantage Over Those on the Street Below, According to Agent.

The real estate agent was endeavoring to impress Mr. Klinker with the extreme desirability of the house in Nearville. He opened the door at the cellar stairs with a flourish.

"We'll go down, if you like," he said briskly, "but you can see there's everything anybody could wish in a suburban cellar—hard cement bottom, white-washed sides, good coal and wood bins, approached by raised platform; furniture the same, set tubs the same."

"What's the need of those raised platforms you speak of?" asked Mr. Klinker, peering into the darkness.

"Handy in the spring and fall rains," said the agent. "Shows the advantage of this location, that they're all you need. Street below this, I'm told, a small boat goes with every cellar, but we don't handle that street at all."

SOME FIGHT!

Synopsis.—Littering on the San Francisco waterfront, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karluk. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsen. Simms recognizes the blind man, calling him Jim Lund. Lund accuses Simms of abandoning him, blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsen, who is a physician as well as first mate, drugs Rainey. A waking from his stupor, Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsen informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsen, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey is made second mate. Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsen. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged and the seal hunters exhaust their ammunition. Carlsen shows his skill with the pistol and Lund does some astonishing shooting "by sound." Sandy, the ship's boy, is swept overboard and is rescued by Rainey, who thus wins Peggy's admiration. The captain sets sail. Sandy tells how Carlsen is stirring up trouble over the division of the gold. Carlsen draws a gun on Rainey, who overpowers him. Tamada, the mysterious Japanese cook, declares himself neutral. Lund, his sight restored, kills Carlsen. Captain Simms dies.

"I guess he was 'Honest Simms,' after all," said Lund at last. "The gal blames me for the morphine, but Carlsen never meant him to live. She'll see that after a bit, mebbe."

Rainey glanced at him curiously. He was getting fresh lights on Lund.

Then the girl appeared, pale, composed, coming straight up to Lund, who halted his stride at sight of her.

"Will you change the course, Mr. Lund?" she said. "Father spoke once more. After you left. He does not want to go on to Unalaska. He said it would mean a rush for the gold; perhaps you would have to stay there. He does not want you to lose the gold. He wants me to have my share. He made me promise. And he wants—he wants"—she bit her lip fiercely in repression of her feelings—"to be buried at sea. That was his last request."

She turned and looked over the rail, struggling to wink back her tears. Rainey saw the giant's glance sweep over her, full of admiration.

"As you wish, Miss Peggy," he said. "Hansen, 'bout ship. Hold on a minute. How about you, Miss Peggy? If you want to go home, we can find ways at Unalaska. I play fair. I'll bring back yore share—in full."

"I am not thinking about the gold," the girl said scornfully. "But I want to carry out my father's last wishes, if you will permit me. I shall stay with the ship. Now I am going back to him. You—you"—she quelled the tremble of her mouth, and her chin showed firm and determined—"you can arrange for the funeral tomorrow at dawn, if you will. I want him to-night."

Her face quivered piteously, but she conquered even that and walked to the companionway.

"Game, by Heaven, game as they make 'em!" said Lund.

CHAPTER IX.

Deming Breaks an Arm. Rainey, dozing in his bunk, going over the sudden happenings of the day, had placed Carlsen's automatic under his pillow after loading it. He found that it lacked four shells of full capacity, the two that Lund had fired at his bottle target, the one fired by Carlsen at Rainey, and the last ineffective shot at Lund, a shot that went astray. Rainey decided, largely through off his glasses and flinging them at the door.

The dynamo that he had idly fancied he could hear purring away inside of Lund was apparent with vengeance now, driving with full force. Lund had brains, cunning, brute force that commanded a respect not all bred of being weaker. In a way he was magnificent. And Rainey vaguely heralded trouble when Captain Simms was at last given to the deep. He felt certain that the hunters under Deming were hatching something big, in the main, his mental prophecy of trouble coming was connected with the girl.

On the border of dreams he was brought back by a strange noise on deck, a rush of feet, many voices, and topping them all, the bellow of Lund, roaring, not for help, but in challenge.

Rainey, half asleep, jumped from his bunk and rushed out of the room. He had no doubt as to what had happened; the hunters had attacked Lund! And, unused to the possession of firearms, still drowsy, he forgot the automatic, intent upon rallying to the cry of the giant. As he came out of her father's room.

"What is it?" she cried.

"Lund—hunters!" Rainey called back as he sped up the stairs. He thought he heard a "wait!" from her, but the stamping and yelling were loud in his ears, and he plunged out on deck. As he emerged he saw the stolid face of Hansen at the wheel, his pale blue eyes glancing at the set of his canvas and then taking on a glint that turned amiships.

Lund looked like a bear surrounded by the dog-pack. He stood upright while the six hunters tore and smashed at him. Lund's arms swung like clubs, his great hands plucked at their holds, while he roared volleys of deep-sea, defiant oaths, shaking or striking off a man now and then, who charged back snarling to the attack.

Brief though the fight had been when Rainey arrived, there was ample evidence of it. Clothes were torn and faces bloody, and already the men were panting as Lund dragged them here and there, falling, striking, half-smothered, but always coming up from under, like a rock that emerges from the bursting of a heavy wave.

A hunter lunged out heavily and confidently to meet him as the others got Lund to his knees for a fateful moment, piling on top of him, bludgeoning blows with guttural cries of fancied victory.

Rainey's man struck, and the strength of his arm, backed by his hurling weight, broke down Rainey's guard and left the arm numb. The next instant they were at close quarters, swinging madly, rifle to the one desire to down the other, on Rainey's cheek, sending him back dazed, striking madly, clinching to stop the pistol-like smashes of the hunter clutching him, trying to trip him, hammering at the fierce face above him as they both went down and rolled into the scuppers, tearing at each other.

He felt the man's hands at his throat, gradually squeezing out sense and breath and strength, and threw up his knee with all his force. It struck the hunter fairly in the groin, and he heard the man groan with the sudden agony. But he himself was nearly out. The man seemed to fade away for a second, the choking fingers relaxed, and Rainey gulped for air. His eyes seemed strained from bulging from their sockets in that fierce grip, and there was a fog before them through which he could hear the roar of Lund, sounding like a siren blast that told he was still fighting, still confident.

Rainey saw his face, one red mask of blood and hair, with his agate eyes flaring up with the glory of his fight. He roared no longer, saving his breath. One of the men tackling his legs dropped senseless from the buffet he got on the side of his skull, and Lund's kick sent him scudding across the deck, limp, out of the fight that could not last much longer.

All this came as Rainey, still dazed, helped himself by the skylight toward the companion, going as fast as he could to get his gun. If he did not hurry he was certain they would kill Lund. No man could withstand those odds much longer.

Lund killed, it would be his turn next, and the girl would be left at their mercy. The thought spurred him, clearing his throbbing head, jarred by the smashes of his still senseless opponent who would be coming to before long.

Then he saw the girl, standing by the rail, not crouching, as he had somehow expected her to be, shutting out the sight of the fight with trembling hands, but with her face aglow, her eyes shining, watching, as a Roman mild might have watched a gladiatorial combat; thrilled with the spectacle, hands gripping the rail, leaning a little forward. She had no eyes for Rainey, her soul was up in arms, backing Lund. The shine in her eyes was for the strength of his prime manhood, matched against the rest, not as a person, an individual, but as an embodiment of the conquering male.

He got the gun, and he snatched a drink of brandy that ran through his veins like quick fire, revivifying him, so that he ran up the ladder and came on deck ready to take a decisive hand.

But he found it no easy matter to risk a shot in that swirling mass. They all seemed to be arm weary. Blows no longer rose and fell. Lund was slowly dragging the dead weight of them all toward the mast. The two men on the deck still lay there, Rainey's opponent was trying to get up, wiping clumsily at the blood on his face, blinded. A man broke loose from the scrimmage, on the opposite side from Rainey, who barely recognized the disheveled figure with the bloody, battered face as Deming. The hunter had managed to get hold of Lund's gun. Rainey's aim was screened by a sudden lunge of the huddle of men. He saw Lund heave, saw his red face bob up, mouth open, roaring once more, saw his leg come up in a tremendous kick that caught Deming's outstretched arm close to the elbow, saw the gleam of the gun as it broke up and overboard, and Deming staggering back, clutching at his broken limb, cursing with the pain, to bring up against the rail and shout to the seamen:

"Get into it, you d—d cowards! Get into it, and settle him!"

Even in that instant the sarcasm of the cry of "cowards" struck home to Rainey. The next second the girl had jumped by him, a glint of metal in her hand as she brought it out of her blouse. This time she saw him. "Come on!" she cried. And darted between the fighters, who tried to grasp her with his one good arm, but failed.

Rainey sped after her just as Lund reached the mast. The girl had a nicked pistol in her hand and was threatening the sullen line of irresolute seamen. Rainey with his gun was not needed. He heard Lund shout out in a triumphant cry and saw him battering at the heads of three who still clung to him.

All through the fight Lund kept his head, struggling to the purpose he had finally achieved, to reach the mast-rack of belaying pins, seize one of the hardwood clubs and, with this weapon, beat his assailants to the deck.

He stood against the mast, his clothes almost stripped from him, the white of his flesh gleaming through the tatters, streaked with blood. Save for his eyes, his face was no longer human, only a mass of flayed flesh and clotted beard. But his eyes were alight with battle and then, as Rainey gazed, they changed. Something of surprise, then of delight, leaped into them, followed by a burning flare that was watched in those of the girl who, with Rainey herding back the seamen, had turned at Lund's yell of victory.

The girl wheeled and fled, dodging behind Tamada, who gave way to let her pass, his ivory features showing no emotion, closing up the fore companionway as Peggy Simms dived below.

Then He Saw the Girl Standing by the Rail.

Lund did not follow her. Instead, he laughed shortly and appeared to see Rainey for the first time.

"Jumped me, the bunch of 'em!" he said, his chest heaving, his breath coming in spurts from his laboring lungs. "Couldn't use my gun. But I licked 'em. D—n 'em! Equals? H—!"

He seemed to have a clear recollection of the fight. He smiled grimly at Deming, who glared at him, nursing his broken arm, then glanced at the man that Rainey had mastered.

"Did him up, eh? Good for you, matey! You didn't have to use your gun. Just as well, you might have plugged me. An' the gal had one, after all."

He seemed to ruminate on this thought as if it gave him special cause for reflection.

He surveyed the rueful, groaning combatants with the smile of a conqueror, then turned to the seamen. "Here, you!" he roared, and they jumped as if galvanized into life by the shout. "Chuck a bucket of water over 'em! Chuck water till they git below. Then clean the decks. Off-watch, you're out of this. Below with you, where you belong. Jump!"

"They all fought fair," he went on. "Not a knife out. Only Deming there, when he knew he was licked, tried to git my gun. Yo're yellin, Deming," he said, with contempt that was as if he had spat in the hunter's face. "I thought you were a better man than the rest. But you've got yores. Git down below an' we'll fix you up."

Lund passed his hand over his face. "I'm some mess myself," he said, stretching his great arms. "Glye me a live-finger drink, Rainey, afore I clean up. Some scrap. And the gal! Did you see the gal, Rainey?"

Out of the bloody mask of his face his agate eyes twinkled at Rainey with a sort of good-natured malice. "After this cheery little fracas," said Lund, mopping at his face, "we'll mebbe have a nice quiet, genteel sort of ship. My gun went overboard, didn't it? Better let me have that one you've got, Rainey."

He stretched out his hand for it. Rainey delivered it, reluctantly. There was nothing else to do, but he felt more than ever that the Karluk was henceforth to be a one-man ship, run at the will of Lund.

But the girl, too, had a weapon. He hugged that thought. She carried it for her own protection, and she would not hesitate to use it. What a girl she was! What a woman, rather! Rainey thought of her as one does of a pool that one plumbs with a stone, thinking to find it fairly shallow, only to discover it a gulf with unknown depth and currents, capable of smiling placidness or sudden storm.

CHAPTER X.

The Rifle Cartridges. The girl did not appear for the evening meal. She had refused Tamada's suggestions through the door. Lund drank heavily, but without any effect, save to sink him in comparative silence, as he and Rainey sat together, after the Japanese had cleared the table.

"We've got to git hold of those cartridges," Lund said, after a long pause. "Carlsen had 'em planted somewhere, an' it's likely in his room. Best thing to do is to chuck 'em overboard. Cheaper to dump the cartridges an' shells than the rifles an' shotguns."

"Where is the magazine?" asked Rainey.

"In the little room aft of the galley. We'll look there first. Come on." The strong room of the Karluk was a narrow compartment, heavily partitioned off from the galley and the corridor. There was a lamp there, and Rainey lit it while Lund closed the door behind them. The magazine was quite empty.

"Through man, Carlsen," said Lund. "Prepared for a show-down, if necessary. Might have put 'em in the safe. Wonder if he changed the combination? I bet Simms didn't, year in an' out. We'll tackle Carlsen's room next. I don't suppose you looked between the bunk mattresses, did you?"

"I never thought of it," said Rainey. "I didn't imagine there would be more than one."

"I've got a hunch you'll find two on Carlsen's bunk. An' the shells between 'em. He kept his door locked when he was out of the main cabin an' 'slep' on 'em nights. That's what I'd be apt to do."

As they came into the main cabin Rainey caught Lund by the arm.

"I'm almost sure I saw Carlsen's door closing," he whispered. "It might have been the shadow."

"But it might not. Shouldn't wonder one of 'em's sneaked in. Saw the cabin empty, an' figured we'd turned in. While we was in the strong-room."

He took the automatic from his pocket and went straight to the door of Carlsen's room. It was locked or bolted from within.

"The fool!" said Lund. "I've got a good mind to let him stay there till he swallows some o' the drugs to fill his belly." He rapped on the panel with the butt of the gun.

"Come on out before I start trouble." There was no answer. Lund looked uncertainly at Rainey.

"I hate to start a rumpus ag'in," he said, jerking his head toward the skipper's room. "Count of her. Reckon he can stay there till after we've buried Simms. He's safe enough."

"She's a woman," said Lund. "And you're a d—d prig."

Old Age.

To those who have no recourse in themselves for living well, every age is burdensome. We must fight against disease. Regard must be paid to health. Moderate exercise must be adopted. So much of meat and drink must be taken. Senile folly, which is commonly called dotage, belongs to weak old men, but not to all. For, as I like young men in which there is something of the old, so I like old men in whom there is something of the young. One who always lives in these pursuits and labors for the welfare of the state does not perceive when old age steals upon him.—Cicero.

That Sunday School Class!

Wishing to become acquainted with the methods of her predecessor, a young woman who taught a Sunday school class for the first time asked the group of bright-faced six-year-olds what the lesson had been the previous Sunday. Silence prevailed for a moment. Then a snub-nosed urchin waved his hand frantically and when granted permission to speak, answered: "It was about burning the bugs in the church." Conversation with the former teacher afterwards revealed that the lesson had been "Burning Incense in the Temple."

Farm Bureau News

C. E. WHELOCK of Libertyville, Ill.

Care of Fruit Trees
Most every farm in Lake county has a few fruit trees which could and would produce at least a home supply of fruit if they were properly cared for.

Two or three groups of farmers are planning to do their spraying co-operatively this year by combining their orders for spray material and all use the same machine.

This plan is being worked satisfactorily in other places and we hope next year to have a number of such spray rings and have the members own their own spray outfit.

A small barrel outfit will do the work and will be time well spent for the few hours it takes to go over the trees. As an average four applications are necessary as follows:

Spray Rings
Fruit growing on most farms in Lake county is a side line and for that reason does not get the attention and the care that is necessary to produce a crop of good fruit. Many farms have orchards of 50 to 150 trees which could bring in a good income if they were pruned and kept free from insect pests.

Spraying comes at a busy time of the year and unless some plan is worked out ahead of time to take care of this work it is pretty apt to be neglected. The orchard instead of being a source of income is a breeding place for insects, pests and disease, and what fruit does grow is of poor quality and not desirable either to sell or for home use.

A plan to do this work co-operatively has been worked out and will be used by two groups of farmers in this county this year.

Either of two plans may be used for operating a spray ring. One plan is for a group of farmers to agree to hire their spraying done by some one who owns a spray outfit charging so much per tree. The one operating the sprayer will also furnish the spray material. This plan will be used by a group of farmers near Diamond Lake.

The other one is to own a sprayer co-operatively, each one in the ring buying a share in the spray ring.

The members of the spray ring have their officers and are governed by the by-laws adopted by the members.

The spraying may be superintended by some one man and each farmer helps when the machine comes to his place to spray.

This second plan for co-operative spraying will likely be used on several farms near Gurnee.

If others are interested in this plan for caring for their orchards call the Farm Bureau. There is not much time left this year to organize more rings where a machine has to be purchased but could be taken care of by hiring some one to do the work if a man can be found with a spray outfit to do the work.

We can at least have this in mind for next year.

Farm Bureau Celebration

A state wide Farm Bureau celebration and pageant will be held at DeKalb on June 28 in honor of the tenth anniversary of the Farm Bureau movement in Illinois. This celebration will be known as the "Farm Bureau Decennial Celebration" and will be held under the auspices of the Illinois Agricultural association, the 95 county Farm Bureaus of the state, the American Farm Bureau Federation and various state university officials.

Committees have been appointed to work out plans.

The Illinois Farm Bureau Movement began almost simultaneously in DeKalb and Kankakee counties in June, 1912.

Annual Meeting of Farm Bureau

The Lake County Farm Bureau will hold their annual meeting Saturday, March 25, at the Farm Bureau office, beginning at 1 p. m.

Officers will be elected and reports made by secretary, treasurer and farm adviser.

Howard Leonard has been secured as speaker for this occasion. Mr. Leonard is president of the Illinois Agricultural association, was reelected to this office beginning the new year March 1.

He owns and operates a farm and his talk will be along practical lines spoken from his own experience on the farm and as president of the bog state organization.

Every farmer who can get to Libertyville Saturday should attend this meeting.

Now you can get yeast the way you want it

For the first time you can get a pure whole yeast in agreeable and convenient tablet form

Of surpassing interest to you thousands of men and women who understand the remarkable health-building properties of yeast is the knowledge that you can now get yeast the way you want it.

Ever since the therapeutic value of yeast was definitely determined by leading scientists, there has been an insistent demand for a pure whole yeast of high vitamin potency—that would keep; that would be easy and agreeable to take; that could be conveniently carried about in the pocket, and, finally, that would not form gas nor cause flatulency or belching.

In Yeast Foam Tablets these demands have been met.

A food—not a medicine

Yeast has within itself the amazing therapeutic element, vitamin, the corrective properties of which are more astounding than any known drug or medicine.

If you wish to take drugs or medicine, do so on the advice of your physician. If you wish to take a supplementary food, for its tonic action on the whole body, take pure, whole, concentrated yeast—Yeast Foam Tablets.

What this new yeast does

"Foods which lack vitamin will not maintain health," says a noted medical authority, "and many foods which originally contained this element reach our table with all vitamin eliminated, due to various heating and preparing processes."

The vitamin thus eliminated is restored through the addition to your regular food of Yeast Foam Tablets. They stimulate the appetite, aid digestion and enable the body to convert food into firm, healthy tissue.

What to take Yeast Foam Tablets for

For that ill health, commonly known as a run-down condition, and all its distressing symptoms such as sluggishness, anaemia, failing strength and endurance, lost appetite and malnutrition, you will find nothing more efficacious than a prompt treatment of Yeast Foam Tablets. They are sold by all druggists.

That Public Drinking Fountain

Some four or five weeks ago the Chicago Footwear Co. offered to donate to the village of Antioch a public drinking fountain. They were willing to pay all expenses of having it installed and all that was required of the village was to furnish the water, which in other words is no expense at all.

When the village solons met at their last meeting the proposal was read and side-tracked until further notice, until the village could straighten out other affairs.

Motions that are side-tracked or "tabled" at the local village meetings, are as a rule, usually "forgotten" and are lost in the shuffle.

Why not, at the Tuesday's meeting, reach down under the "side-tracked" articles and resurrect this valued proposition and immediately notify the Chicago Footwear Co. the acceptance of their offer and have the fountain erected in time to be appreciated by the time the heat of the summer months is upon us.

At the annual meeting of the Burlington fire department it was voted to again hold a Fourth of July celebration in that city. Committees are being appointed and work started early so that attractive features can be secured.

Mildred Frazier who has been visiting home folks returned to Chicago Wednesday.

The question of the day is: "How can the people of Grass Lake get into the Village of Antioch. The streets at the south of the village leading to the Grass Lake road are well protected by deep mud holes."

Mr. and Mrs. Pregelzer motored to Chicago Friday.

Marie Rothers, Peter Waldweiler, Lester Trieger and Peter Kiefer visited their teacher Mrs. Stanton Sunday afternoon and on the way home their machine was stuck in the mud for some time.

Lester Trieger was absent from school Monday. He went with his sister Miss Pearl. They got as far as G. D. Stanton's with their car, from there Warren Stanton took her to Channel Lake with a horse and buggy.

Marie Rothers was absent part of last week because of the death of her grandfather, who lived in Chicago.

Some of our children are absent on account of sickness.

James Hanrahan motored to Waukegan Saturday to attend Masonic Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kern returned from Florida last Monday.

The seventh and eighth grade pupils took examination in Illinois History on Thursday.

Walter Forbrick got stuck on Sunday just south of George Wedge's.

The hotels are preparing for fishermen.

Mrs. Scholtz of Chicago was a visitor of A. Panknin Sunday.

Raise 'em The FUL-O-PEP Way

The Ful-O-Pep Way of Feeding chicks has changed the old expensive "grain feeding way" and has proven to poultry raisers that the old method of grain feeding is all wrong. The Ful-O-Pep Way of feeding

Gives You 1 Pound of Gain at Cost of 2 Pounds of Feed

Instead of only 1 pound of gain to each 4 pounds of feed, which is the basis of figuring cost of production arrived at by experiment stations covering several years experiments with grain feeding. Why continue to feed this old expensive way when The Ful-O-Pep Way will give you the same gains with only half the feed?

FUL-O-PEP
GROWING MASH

Costs Less Per Pound of Gain Made Than Any Other Feed

The Ful-O-Pep Way consists of feeding Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash from the very start—continuously keeping it before your birds all the time. Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash, because of the high feeding value of its Oatmeal, fish and bone contents goes twice as far as grain feeds—every ounce is digested by chicks' delicate digestive organs—there is no waste and when compared with results cost only half as much in pounds of feed consumed for gains in pounds of meat produced. Furthermore, your losses from bowel and digestive troubles that arise from feeding hard indigestible grains, will be very much less and your flock will be of even growth and development. Give The Ful-O-Pep Way a trial this season—it will reduce your feed costs and materially increase your profits.

"The Lure of Jade"

With a wave of South Sea literature sweeping the country, for which such noted writers as Somerset Maugham and Frederick O'Brien are responsible. "The Lure of Jade," an R-C Picture, starring Pauline Frederick, is one of the most timely subjects of the day. The story, in fact, is saturated with the atmosphere of the South Seas. A society woman, the daughter of a rear admiral, who has abandoned her luxurious surroundings because she was made the unwitting victim of a scandal, goes off to the South Seas seeking surcease from her troubles. There she becomes a different woman. She is exotic and languorous, conducts a rooming and gambling house and is known as a mysterious woman. This role fits Miss Frederick snugly, to be sure, and she gives one of the most brilliant performances of her career on stage or screen.

Urge Garages to Keep "Tab" on Incoming Cars

Springfield, Ill. Only a small per cent of the garages in the state are complying with the law requiring the registration of the number of all automobiles brought in for storage or repairs, Secretary of State Louis L. Emerson declared today.

"If it is a good law, it should be enforced," he said, "and if it is not a good law, it should be repealed."

"He is urging automobile dealers and garage owners throughout the state to pay more attention to the law. In an address before the Chicago Automobile Trade association last Monday he laid special emphasis on this point. He said:

"But of all the automobile laws, the one most generally ignored is that requiring garage owners to keep a register of the numbers of all automobiles brought into the garage. The purpose of this law was to assist in finding stolen automobiles. I am required, under an act of the last general assembly to issue a weekly bulletin, giving the numbers of all stolen automobiles which are reported to me by the police officers and sheriffs in various sections of the state. These bulletins are sent to all police officers and sheriffs and if each garage kept a register of cars brought in for repairs or storage it would greatly aid in finding the missing automobiles."

"In many instances it would be a protection to the garage owner. Not long ago a garage owner wrote in and asked to have a special number given to an engine of an automobile which he had in storage in his shop, in order that he might sell the car to pay for storage and repairs. Investigation showed that the car had been brought in, a number of accessories ordered put on it, and the engine number had been effaced. Evidently the car had been stolen. We refused to issue the special number because it would be aiding in the disposal of a stolen automobile."

"If the garage owner had obeyed the law and looked for the number when the car was brought in he would have discovered the deception and prevented the running up of a bill for storage and accessories."

In connection with the necessity for observing automobile laws, Secretary Emerson points out that the growth in the number of cars has been so rapid that legislation has with difficulty kept pace with it. Twenty-five years ago there were only four automobiles in the United States and today there are 10,500,000. The point of saturation is still far off, he believes.

"In Illinois," he said, "our hard roads system" is predicated upon the expectation of a continued prosperity for the automobile trade. In 1917, when the $60,000,000 bond issue was adopted, careful estimates were made of the probable automobile future. It was estimated that the saturation point would be 600,000 cars, and that this point would be reached in 1924. We passed this mark last year and will exceed it by 100,000 this year."

GRIFFIN FOR SHERIFF

To the Men and Women of Lake County:

In asking you to vote for and support me, for the nomination for Sheriff, at the Primary to be held Tuesday, April 11, I am deeply appreciative of the preferment you have shown, and the confidence you have placed in me during the past.

As a public servant, I have always tried to do my duty regardless of the political consequences to myself. In so doing, I have at times gained the hatred of persons who do not possess a sincere respect for law and order. To such I have no apologies to offer, nor promises to make.

With you, my fellow citizens, my sole recommendation for further favors must be my past record. If you nominate and elect me, I shall administer the affairs of the office I seek, in accordance with the laws of the state and the orders of your courts. I shall endeavor to safeguard your lives and property in so far as the office of sheriff may require, I will co-operate with all law regulating and enforcing bodies and officers at all times.

Respectfully Yours,

ELVIN J. GRIFFIN.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL PASSED IN HOUSE BY VOTE OF 333 TO 70

Measure, as Framed by Republicans, Approved at Turbulent Session.

FACES ANOTHER BATTLE WHEN IT REACHES SENATE

Leaders of Lower Branch of Congress Says That President Will Sign Bill If Presented to Him in Its Present Form—Veterans Will Have Option of Four Kinds of Compensation.

Washington, March 25.—With the rules suspended and no amendments in order, the soldiers bonus bill was passed by the house Thursday night by a vote of 333 to 70.

Voting for the bill on the final roll call were 248 Republicans, 84 Democrats, and one Socialist; against it, 42 Republicans and 23 Democrats. Midwestern members voting against the bill were Cannon and Mann of Illinois and Newton of Minnesota, all Republicans.

Representative Rodenburg of Illinois was not recorded as voting. Representative Moores of Indiana, Republican, voted "Present," being paired with an absentee.

Passed After Hot Session.

The bill, as framed by the Republican leaders, was passed at a turbulent session, amid a deluge of oratory and to the accompaniment of the shrieks of indignation of the minority over the gag rule by which the Democrats and the farm bloc were prevented from offering amendments restoring the immediate full cash bonus payment financed by an excess profits tax. No method to provide the revenue for the bonus is specified in the bill. Nearly every member of the house was in his seat and the galleries were jammed throughout the noisy session.

The measure now goes to the senate, where it will be the center of another stubborn battle. Here the business interests opposing the bill will make their last stand.

Now Up to the Senate.

The senate finance committee is not likely to give the bill any consideration until after the tariff bill is reported to the senate, which will be about April 1. The committee will consider whether the bill should be approved in its present form or amended by providing for the financing of a cash bonus through the issuance of bonds or from the proceeds of the principal or interest of the foreign debt. The proposed sales tax advocated by President Harding is no more popular in the senate than in the house.

House leaders insist that President Harding will sign the bill if presented to him in its present form.

Provisions of the Measure.

Under the bill as passed cash bonuses should be given only to those veterans entitled to less than $50 under the scale of adjusted service compensation providing for $1 per day of home service and $1.25 per day of overseas service in excess of 60 days. Veterans who would be entitled to a greater sum have the option of four kinds of compensation—an adjusted service certificate, vocational training aid, farm or home aid and land settlement aid.

The chief feature of the bill is the adjusted service certificate which is the equivalent of a 20-year endowment insurance policy. As a substitute for the cash bonus it is provided that veterans may borrow from banks immediately up to 50 per cent of the original face value of the adjusted service certificate. Interest on these loans is limited to the federal reserve bank discount rate plus 2 per cent. If the veterans default on the loans the banks may collect the amount from the government at the end of three years.

Encourages Savings Account.

Those veterans who retain their certificates for the full 20 years' period will receive cash at the end of that time equal to about three times the original face value, the ultimate value representing an increase of 25 per cent in the face value plus 4½ per cent interest compounded annually.

According to the estimates of Representative Fordney, chairman of the ways and means committee, the bonus under this plan will cost the government about $4,000,000,000.

Copley Supports Bill.

Representative Copley of Illinois, a Republican member of the ways and means committee, declared that an adjustment of compensation for the ex-service men is a moral obligation resting on the country.

Representative London of New York, Socialist, denounced the bill as "a hokus pocus, a proposition to pay the soldiers for the highest service any man can render—to fight for his country."

Big Cotton Firm Fails.

Fast After a Week-End.

The wider freedom of the leisure hours of the week-end produces in the case of many ordinary sedentary persons a condition of well-being and increased appetite which is apt to last on into the beginning of the working week, with disastrous consequences. A UNION OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Healthy Housewife---Happy Home

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Helped Form Many

For the ailing, half-sick housewife such a union is impossible. Often times even the slightest form of housework cannot be accomplished. Yet the work must be done.

Many women struggle along for years suffering from some form of female trouble that make their lives miserable and their homes far from happy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped thousands of just such women regain their health and strength. Just give your thought to the following letters and remember that the women who wrote these letters knew how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound and again afterwards. It helped them—let it help you.

Had Nervous Spells

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work without help. I weighed only 95 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women, as I have gained weight and health. I can do all my work, anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM REARICK, Horatio, Arkansas.

Go Light on Father.

"In choosing father's present make it as light on him as possible," advises the Fitchburg Sentinel.

Money would go farther did it not travel so fast.

Reading, Pa.—"I was a nervous wreck and could hardly do my housework. I always had to have help or I would never have got it done. Through the advice of friends I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for my blood and I am feeling fine and doing my work all alone. I can recommend these medicines to any one, for they certainly helped me. I suffered for five years and Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines pulled me through."—Mrs. WALTER U. STROYER, 1218 Mulberry St., Reading, Pa.

Recommends the Vegetable Compound

New Orleans, La.—"I have found relief from my troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I praise it wherever I go. I could not do my work as it should be done for I would sometimes have to lie down because of the pains I had. A friend induced me to take your Vegetable Compound and I have got great results from it. I keep house and am able to do all my own work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine."—Mrs. T. FOECKLER, 1915 N. Derbigny St., New Orleans, La.

PLATONIC FRIENDSHIP A JOKE

Opinion Firmly Held by One Man, and He Has Good Reason for So Believing.

I never believed in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke!

But one summer I met a pretty girl who believed in it. She told me that our friendship would have to be platonic or nothing. She said we could be good chums and not spoil it all by becoming sentimental. I didn't want to get married, so I readily agreed. As we both then knew that it would be perfectly safe, we started in at once with moonlight and so forth.

That was ten years ago. Today we have seven fine children and my wife is very busy. So am I. Any woman who has ever had to take care of seven fine children knows how busy my wife is, and any man who has ever had to provide for that number knows how busy I am.

I never believe in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke.—William Sanford in Judge.

Revolutionizing the Orchestra.

Leo Sir, an aged violin maker of Marmarade, France, has perfected instruments that may revolutionize the orchestra. At present we use four violin-type instruments, ranging from the soprano violin to the bass viol. Mr. Sir provides two super-sopranos, a mezzo-soprano slightly above the present alto, a barytone just below the tenor and a sub-bass. The newly organized orchestra has been tried out at the Montmartre theater and critics declare that the possibilities of interpretation are wonderfully increased.—Scientific American.

Interior Decorating Demonstration

SURELY the home—the center and source of most of our joys in life—deserve to be fresh, clean and attractive.

Yet many a person sighs for new furniture or new woodwork effects, but is denied them because of expense.

And all the time many of the beautiful things desired are right in the home.

Those old chairs, that scratched picture frame, that scarred dresser and hundreds of other objects throughout the house that are now lacking in beauty and distinction can be easily transformed into things of beauty again.

To enable our customers to bring out these hidden beauties of the home, we have arranged to conduct a Devoe Interior Decorating Demonstration on APRIL 14 and 15.

The Devoe Expert will give you practical suggestions on modern methods of interior decoration. She will not spin theories; she will present facts. She will not talk generalities, but will actually show you how, with but a few minutes of your time, you can at a very slight cost make the dingy spots in the home glowingly attractive and richly bright.
